THE MAN INDIANA WANTS

What General Ben Harrison's Candidacy Means to Republicans of His State.

They Are Going to Chicago by Thousands to Enthusiastically Support Him-All Trains Crowded with High-Spirited Hoosiers.

The continued encouraging news from Chicago has filled Indiana people everywhere over the State with high hopes. There seems to be a general conviction that now is the time for Hoosierdom to get in its work, if it ever intends to do so. The telegrams from the scene of battle, announcing that but one thing is necessary to secure for Gen. Harrison the pomination-the absolute assurance of Indiana's cordial and unanimous support-has served to induce men to leave their business by handrefs and go to Chicago to carry this guarantes to the convention. Every train that leaves the city for the north is jammed and crowded with Indiana people-and all are hollering and shouting for Harrison. The Kankakee took out ten coaches loaded with local passengers Friday night, eight coaches and two parlor cars full yesterday morning, and last night the rush was so great as to necessitate the running of three etions. Nothing like such a situation has ever been known by the officers of the road on a sim-Her occasion. This company sold six hundred tickets yesterday, and kept its local office open

At the Monon office the demand for tickets was as great and all the resources of the office were need in supplying it. The Panhandle, too, is doing a large business, and the trains on each go out crowded. The Monon and Panhandle offices were open until late last evening, and they, with the Kankakee, will be ready to sell all of to day and until late this evening. The exodus from this city and all the promi-nent towns of the State is simply unheard-of before. A great many who did not intend to go until next week have been unable to stay away any longer. The telegrams from friends at the front calling the big Hoosier column to come and do its work has been answered with enthusasm on all sides, "If all the other candidates can muster as many friends as Harrison, remarked a gentleman yesterday. I don't see where the people of Chicago are going to put all of them."

There was scarcely any business of any consequence going on yesterday. The arrivals at the hotels were very few, and there was scarcely anybody around the offices at all. Hervey Bases, jr., assured a Journal reporter that the Indianapolis Hominy Mills had suspended operations until after the convention. Every person has something to say about the

Every person has something to say about the trip, and is eager to give expression to loyalty to Gen. Harrison's interests. Judge Lewis C. Walker, of the Superior Court, left yesterday, at neen, to work for the General. "I am for Harrison until the end," said he, just as he started to the depot, "and I do not propose to hold any more court until he is nominated."

"Going to Chicago?" a reporter asked Captain Robert E. Smith yesterday.

"No," he replied, "but there is but one thing that keeps me away, and that is my marriage on the 20th."

"Why do you believe General Harrison should." "Why do you believe General Harrison should earry Indiana this fail by 15,000 majority; because he is every way reliable as a Republican;

because he is always ready and willing to go out into the fight, and remain until the last vote is pelled on the day of election; because he would make a glerious record as President and keep the Republican bauner in the accordency for years to come; because his name would bring the vigor of the campaign fully up to high standing promises of the grand old Republican

The sentiment and affection with which the colored people of his home regard General Harrison find expression in the following from the Indianapolis World, a paper published and edited by colored men in the interest of their

The writer, from hering been in his boyhood in the family and from having kept up his acquaintance in his maturer years, knows him to be a kind-hearted man and not the cold, unfeeling aristocrat that some have pictured him to be. Not being a politician in the valuar sense of the term, he was not always fawning and courting popularity. He was his honest self upon all occasions. Whatever he did or said could be relied upon. His hired help always admired him and almost worshiped him. I never knew him to speak an unkind word to a servant. During the last twenty-two years he has had only three different men in his employ, all of whom were strongly attached to him. Upon one occasion the young man who worked for him had a brother who got into a little trouble and Mr. Harrison went into the justice court and defended him, although the young man was scarcely worthy such assistance. When we remember his high standing as a lawyer and how far removed his practice is from these lower courts such action on his part must be regarded in the light of great condescension of which a cold, undeeling man would be incapable. Beyond all doubt Mr. Harrison is the choice of Indians Republicans, and the convention will make a wise selection in choosing him as their standard-bearer. Harrison and

Gen. R. S. Foster, ex-United States marshal, went to Chicago last night. He says that he has great confidence in the delegates there seeing that there is more logic in Harrison's caudidacy than any one else mentioned. He believes in 15,000 majority in Indiana, and says that the country does not have another man better fitted for the presidency than Harrison. He has known him all his infe-at least, all his public life-and that is why be is for him.

M. A. Woolen, of J. A. Closser & Co., thinks

He cannot see why anybody should be in doubt for one moment about the choice of the people of Indiana for President. He is for Harrison and would vote for him for a solid month before he would even think of a second choice.

Harry Milligan said: "The logic of events points to Harrison."

Capt. P. J. Kelieher remarked: "Harrison is well thought of by the Irish-American element."

Herman Bamberger enthusiastically says: "Harrison will secure Indiana to the Republican column."

About fifteen of Morran county's Republicans arrived in the city last night, en route to the convention. They will be followed to-day by as many more, and later on by another large delegation. They are for Harrison to a man, and eay that there is not a dissenting voice in the whole county. They report that the county has never seen such interest displayed over a national convention as at the present time.

"Are you for Harrison!" was asked of Hon. F.
P. A. Pheips.

"Are you for Harrison?" was asked of Hon. F.
P. A. Pheips.

"To a man, sir," was the quick reply. "We would be ungrateful if we were not. We know who have been our leaders; who have won the vistories, and we will stend by him to the end. I verily believe that Indiana Republicans are the best Republicans on God's green earth. They know what it means to fight. They know what good leadership, great shility and fitness for all public duties are, and, when they get a man that combines these qualities, they will stick to him to the last. We are for Harrison always.

"There is not a single Republican in the county who isn't enthusiastically for Harrison. I came up on the train, to-day, with a gentleman from Pennsylvania, who has been cent out over Indiana to view the positical situation. He said to me that he was utterly amazed at the enthusiasm that was everywhere over the State for Harrison. He had been led to believe that there was some division here, but he couldn't find it. Harrison is the man for Indiana, and I think when all these Harrison delegations reach Chicago they will make that convention think so."

The first Southern delegates passed through the city yesterday. They came up on the J., M. & I. train from Louisville, and were the twenty representatives from Tennessee, accompanied by the Gaefield Club of Knoxville. They go to Chicago uninstructed, and feel very favorable toward. General Harrison. They were critically Blaine men, but go to Chicago to select a man who can sarry the doubtful States. The delegates all spoke in the highest terms of General Harrison. They denied being in any way committed to Sherman.

John Newby, one of the foremost men at the Morgan county bar, thinks that if the convention acts judiciously it will nominate Harrison. "It is a matter of wice politics," said he. "If the Republican managers think Indiana is necessary to an election we must have Harrison. With him on the ticket we can safely promise 10,000 majority; without him we can't make any promises. There is no question about the arai Harrison's ability and his every fitness for the place. If any man can give a single reason why he should not be nominated I should him to haif it."

Poarce, surveyor of Morgan county, ing them is coming to Indianapolis to-morrow, over the C. I., St. L. & C. and many more will so by way of Gosport and the L. N. A. & C.

Major George W. Grubbe, of Martinsville, Re-publican candidate for Congress in the Fifth dis-trict in 1886, said: "The Republicane to deserve and achieve success must nominate the cleanest, best equipped and most available man. That man is Harrison. There is no contest here between favorite sons. The voice of Indiana is for Harrison with practical unanim-The enthusiasm for him has never been equaled in the State. The people here know him. He is clean, safe and strong, with a record as a man, a soldier and a statesman without blemish. More, he can certainly insure the electoral vote of Indiana. Other men might carry Indiana. We know that Harrison can. The points in his favor have only to be thoughtfully considered to make his commation certain."

Captain David Wilson, Clerk of Morgan county, said: "Morgan county is unanimous for General Harrison, and much enthusiasm prevails over the prospect of his nomination. Many persons from every township in our county are going to Unicago. Our people feel confident that with Harrison for President Indiana is will support Harrison. Being an Indianian myself, I know the fighting qualities of Indiana Republicans well enough to back them in their statement that Indiana will give 10,000 majority in case Harrison is the nominee."

Hon. Amor Smith, jr., Mayor of Cincinnati, was with the party. Like Judge Swing, he said Ohio was undivided for Sherman. "We do not expect to vote for anybody else but Sherman," said he, "but shall say nothing against General Harrison. He is a great factor in the race for the nomination, and I wouldn't be surprised to see him successful in ease Sherman could not be nominated. Ohio recognizes in General Harrison a great man, and after Sherman is the Ohio choice for President."

Howard Ferris, delegate from the First Cincinnati district was also enthusiastically for Sherman. "There is no telling what the convention will do," said he, "but Ohio will do some earnest work for Sherman. I intend to make no promises as to who I shall support after Sherman. ZANESVILLE, O., June 16 .- A terrific explosion, succeeded by several secondary ones, at 11:20 this morning, startled the whole city. Closely following was a fire slarm from Box 5, in the heart of the business portion. Those in the neighborhood saw the large two-story brick warehouse of Baily Brothers & Co., in the rear of their building on Main, between Fifth and Sixth, with several surrounding frame buildings, rise in the air and fall with a crash in a heap. A team of horses, which stood near the door of the warehouse was almost covered with debris, and Charles Murphy, a farmer, blown out of his wagon in passing. The extent of the disaster was not realized until Abner Grayson, a colored employe, climbed out of the flaming mass, burned and bruised from head to foot. Then the mangled body of William Miner, a draythe mangled body of William Miner, a drayman, who was supposed to be dying, was recovered. Several others of the employes escaped with slight injuries. Mort Bailey, son of Frank P. Bailey, was in the building, and his body was buried under the ruins. There is not a possibility of his being alive. John Lehman, driver for E. Bloomer, was in a stable adjoining, but managed to get from the wreck with severe but not fatal injuries. Jesse Carder, colored, employed by Bailey Broa. was taken from the wreck badly burned. It is reported that two more employes are buried under the wreck. At this writing the ruins are der the wreck. At this writing the ruins are still burning flercely and no attempt can yet be made to search for the missing. Miner, who was taken out after the explosion, is dying and cannot live an hour. Grayson, it is said, has inhaled the fismes and his injuries will prove fatal. The house is the largest wholesale drug firm in southeastern Ohio, and the warehouse was filled with gasoline, paints, oils etc., which ignited from some cause yet nnknown. The loss will not be less than $100,000.

1. This is a matter concerning which no statistics have been gathered. Many eminent ministers have used intoxicating liquors freely in times past when public sentiment did not ferbid it. More recently abstemiousness has been the rule even among those whose convictions do not incline to strict prohibition. 2. The license is graded in amount, the highest figures, we believe, being $500. It is the stringency of the law in regard to issuing the license, rather than the amount of the fee, which makes the Pennthe amount of the fee, which makes the Pennsylvania law so effective.

Have It Well Done

One of the worst put up jobs we know of is a job of badly hung wall-paper. That is the kind of job that is "put up" on you only too often--and that isn't all of it The "job" begins earlier, in leading you to select the wrong paper. Wa don't mean by this that you may be swindled-though you may bebut there is a right paper and a wrong paper for every room. We have the finest lights, side and ton. for display; we can bring out the gas-light effects in our "Dark Room," and the harmony with the surroundings of various kinds of furniture. Come to our wall paper department for "pointers," (as well as paper.)
